MOLLISON PLANE CRASHES AT BRIDGEPORT AFTER SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT OVER ATLANTIC

Father of Youthful Ottley Kidnaper Kills Self BRITON AND WIFE

LIFE WITH SHOTGUN

W. A. Bowen, 86, widely-known farmer of Lavonia, Ga., and father of 17-year-old Pryor Bowen, who drove the automobile in which John K. Ottley Sr., was kidnaped July 6, shot and killed himself at his home in Lavonia late Sunday.

Police Chief D. W. Adams said the charge from both barrels of a shotgun struck Bowen in the chest. He found the weapon beside the body, with a string attached to the triggers in such fashion that the gun could have been discharged by pulling the string with a toe.

For several days, Adams said

Tonight, Adams said members of the family told him, the farmer left them sitting on the front porch and went to bed. A short time later, he was heard to rise and go out through the back of the house. An instant later the report of the gun was heard, and members of the family ran to the back to find Bowen lying dead, attired in his night clothing.

His widow, and his daughter, Miss Wilma Bowen, 20, who were in the home at the time, did not immediately assign a reason for the act. Neighbors study that the father had been smith & Simpson Lumber Company.

Cary Bowen said that there is another brother, Cecil Bowen, who is in the air service at San Diego, Calif. Their mother, who has been worrying over Pryor's trouble, is seriously ill, prostrated by her husband's tragic end, he said.

Cary Bowen came to Atlanta with the intention of trying to get the $10,000 bond reduced so that Pryor can get out on bail, he said. Len B. Guillebeau, attorney for the Lavonia youth, said that he will seek permission from the superior court today for Bowen to attend the funeral under guard.

Church Ban No Worry For Elliott Roosevelt

KANSAS CITY, July 23 .- (AP)-

KANSAS CITY, July 23.—(P)—Elliott Roosevelt said today he was "not interested" in the possibility he would incur the displeasure of the Episcopal church for his marriage to Ruth Josephine Googins after a Nevada divorce.

"I am not interested in anything," the son of the president added as the train bearing him and his bride to her home in Fort Worth, Texas, reached this city at 7:20 a. m.

Bishop George Craig Stewart, of Chicago, commenting on the marriage of Roosevelt and Miss Goggins at Burlington, Iowa, last night, said Episcopal church law provides for suspension from communion of a divorced person who remarries when the basis of the divorce is grounds other than adultery.

"There is no valid reason for an accident in Atlanta. Most of them come from pure carelessness—unadjusted brakes, failure to keep the driver's eyes open and the like. We know of one driver who has killed five per-sons in accidents, but we are power-less to stop him from driving because less to stop him from driving because less to stop him from driving because of the lack of some check measure. The certainty and severity of punishment deter people from violating the law, and, if it is possible to make punishment for traffic violations in Atlanta sure and effective, we are going to do that.

going to do that.

"In the past I have had occasion to recommend a few dismissals of traffic cases myself. One of these cases involved a man who had just lost two children and had other troubles and who made a wrong turn into the street in going to a hospital. But, from now on, I am tearing up no more tickets.

"While the violations of time-limit parking and yellow-curb parking endanger no life or limb, they are violations of our traffic code and if we are going to enforce the law against speeding and reckless driving, we might as well make the motorists go the whole way and instill into them respect for the traffic laws by making it hard on those who persist in ignoring the laws. Only About Three Billions Remain Tied Up as Result of Holiday.

WASHINGTON. July 23.—More than $40,000,000,000 has been released into the credit stream of the nation through the reopening of approximately 14,300 banks closed during the holiday, a survey by the United Press showed tonight.

Statistics indicate that approximately $3,000,000,000 still is in closed banks.

The federal reserve board in its monthly bulletin reported a total of 13,770 member and state banks, exclusive of mutual savings institutions, had reopened on a normal basis as of clusive of mutual savings institutions, had reopened on a normal basis as of June 28 last.

The bulletin estimated a total of $31,524,405,000 in deposits had been freed through these reopenings. The higher United Press figure included 597 mutual savings banks which on June 30, 1932, had total deposits of more than $10,000,000,000.

The reserve board's compilation showed that 5,602 of 6,706 member banks were open on a normal basis on June 28 and that 8,168 of 10,184 state non-member banks were operating.

state non-member banks were operating.

In a special study of the number and size of deposits in member banks collected in connection with the bank deposit insurance plan to go into effect January 1, next, the reserve board reported that more than 96 per cent of the deposits in 5.500 member banks were in accounts of less than $2,500.

Temporarily after January 1 accounts of less than $2,500 will be insured 100 per cent under the Glass-Steagall act. After July 1, next, deposits up to $10,000 will be insured 100 per cent, $10,000 to $50,000 by 75 per cent and over $50,000 by 50 per cent.

He said he was "feeling fine—considering" but his bronzed face looked fit and refreshed. He showed no trace of fatigue after his gruelling ven-day dash.

He hastened back from the airport to receive General Balbo, who had been tied up in a traffic jam last night, preventing a meeting at the field when Post arrived. The Italian air minister told Post he considered him a true comrade and that he has a "profound admiration for the tireless American."

Post wore a dark grey business suit, with a fresh white patch over his left eye. His blue shirt contrasted with a deep red tie.

Balbo was attired in a white uniform trimmed with gold and black braid. He wore white gloves and carried a military cane.

The general said he had issued orders to his men to receive final instructions at S p. m. as to the exact time for their take-off tomorrow on their homeward route.

"Tonight after 8 o'clock," he added, "my officers and crew will be once more navy men. They will be sub-ject to our full discipline and will not be permitted to leave the hotel." As he left the hotel General Balbo told friends:

"Signor Post tells me he can go in his, what you call her, La Winnie, even faster around the world. I believe him."

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

SIGNS WASHINGTON, July 23 .- It is more than a social item that Bernard Baruch sailed for Europe the second day of the stock market decline. He said he wanted to take the cure at

Vichy. At the same time Professor Moley was hanging around his club in New York instead of his office in Washington. His comments to pals indicated he would not mind a cure himself. These twin facts aroused comment in the inner circle smoking

It was Baruch and Moley who helped Mr. Roosevelt to chart the last course we were sailing on. That was the course designed to restore price levels and wages, and later to reduce the gold con-

RE-DEALING While the twin bulwarks were off gallivanting, Mr. Roosevelt was in his room for some days with a cold. Among his private callers were some who do not agree with the Baruch-Moley program, notably Budget Director Douglas. He favors a more conservative course. Also Professor Tugwell. He likes bigger and better action. These circumstances set the boys in the back room to betting pennies on the possibili-ties of new deals within the new deal. They speculated on getting dollar revaluation before fall, possibly at once. They pointed out that our outward trade was beginning to suffer from latest activities of the pound sterling. Stabilization was obviously more desirable than when we spurned it at London.

CREDIT Mr. Roosevelt may be anxious to repeal the law of circumstantial evidence when he hears what some of the scoffers are saying. They are trying to build up a case indicating the administration wanted to help the stock market down.

They point out that the federal reserve board recently eased up on its open market operations. The week ending July 12 it bought about $12,000,000 of government bonds. This past week it bought only $10,000,000. Earlier it had been buying $25,000,-

That had a tendency toward curtailment of credit.

The first dip in the market came when New York banks curtailed credit on distilling stocks. It was the very day after Alabama and Arkansas went for repeal. The market was set for sky-high soaring. Instead it went for a swim.

Only a few know that the first bank to put restrictions on distilling stock loans was a large one which has been playing very close to the administration.

FACTS Those who should know are placing little credence in hasty deductions from these facts. They insist the credit curtailment was infinitesimal. On July 19 the credit of reserve banks amounted to $2,196,000,000. That was $34,000,000 less than the week before and $242,000,000 less than the same week last year. The difference was hardly enough to matter. Also the restrictions on distilling stock loans were not tricky, but just good banking. Speculation in them had gone too far.

None of these factors were sufficient to send the market as low They just happened to come when the market was in a weaker technical position than anyone realized.

SPATS President Roosevelt apparently denied the rumors of a rift between himself and Professor Moley without a word.

He sent a ship model to the Moley children. There are as many rumors of rifts around town as there are officials. Even Postmaster-General Farley is not immune. The clap-trap mongers would have you believe he and the president are tearing out each other's hair. Differences of opinion develop in the best regulated official families. They rarely lead to resignations. TONE The idea for the campaign to boost purchasing power came about as a compromise.

One faction of the president's advisers wanted him to swing a stick. The others advised soft words. The result is that the stick is sheathed temporarily while the soft words are tried out. The stick is still handy. It is the power to license industries. It will be used if words fail. Officials believe there is little chance of that. They are counting on co-operation. They want everyone to know they can require it, if it is not freely given.

NOTES A publicity man outside the government here is supposed to have made $37,000 in the wheat market

Professor Tugwell is getting the current publicity spotlight instead of Professor Moley because he wrote a newspaper article which indicated he knew more about the new deal than anyone else. The spotlight may be somewhere else tomorrow.

The high-wage drive ends the inside argument as to whether a blanket code would have been legal. Lawyers differ on it.

One of Mr. Hoover's friends, leaving Palo Alto recently, asked the former president if there was anything he could do for Mr. Hoover in Washington. Mr. Hoover replied: "I do not care WHOM you do in Washington."

The relationship between low wages and community poverty is obvious to anybody who will look for the truth. In one of the poorer sections of America, the average wage paid by the chief industry in normal times is something less than $15 a week. In a typical small town of that section you will find clerks who are paid $45 or $50 a month. The stores keep a stock of sole leather, for many men half-sole their own shoes. In winter, though the climate is mild, few families try to keep more than one room comfortable. The best selling chair retails for 60 cents. The dentist pulls teeth at 50 cents each and makes a complete set of false teeth for $18. The doctors get $2 for a daylight call, attend a maternity case for $10, and rejoice when they collect for half of their work. In short, everybody pinches pennies and works for a small reward because the people who provide his living have little money to spend.

The old-fashioned capitalist made his profits by paying starvation wages. His system worked because wage earners were few and his cash customers were farmers and shopkeepers and independent mechanics.

But now we are a land of employes, and the cash customer who makes prosperity gets his pay check every Saturday. And the size of his check determines the good or ill fortune of everybody in the community.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I am not a woman hater. Every woman I have known has been there is one point about the fair sex that puzzles me. They cry loud and long for equality with the men and when that equality works to their advantage they are quite content but when it works a hardship on them they show had sportsmantent but when it works a hardship on them they show bad sportsmanship. For instance, a distant relative of mine and his wife committed a crime. They were equally responsible but the courts acquitted the wife and decreed that the husband should pay the supreme penalty with his life. Now I say justice was not administered in this case. I hope to live to see the day when capital punishment is discontinued by every state in the union. Recently in conversation with several intelligent women I mentioned this story and each of these women said she thought the accused wife should have been acquitted simply because she was a woman and that the man should have paid for the crime. Is this the woman's point of view?

RANDOLPH.

ANSWER:

The women with their new found equality are much like a certain ladd of 14 whose mother complains that he begs his father continually to permit him to drive the family car, on the ground that he is both big and brawny enough to handle it, and yet when she complains of his bad manners to visitors in the house he reproaches her with expecting "gentleman manners" of a mere boy. The women who set up a howl for equality with the men think themselves quite competent to cope with the problems that the men must face (and indeed some are) but when they strike a snag their first recourse is to the age-old argument that came in with their argument that came in with the passing of chivalry: "We belong to the fair and weaker sex and our heavy burdens are to be borne by the stronger males." A judge and jury belonging to the old school have every sympathy with this argument. But judges and juries are changing with the times as is witnessed by the fact that many a newspaper these days carries the story of some woman's execution.

Under these circumstances there is nothing to do but to try a complete separation from the girl. If you can afford to take a summer not to expect to receive any mail from you other than postcards. A surfeit torments me by pretending that he thinks I don't love him. How can I convince him that I do? BRIDE.

You must learn first of all that when a man is doing something that he knows makes his wife unhappy he instinctively tries to pdt her on the defensive before she has a chance to attack him. And so your husband, realizing that he wrongs you when he drinks, torments you by pretending that he doubts your love for him. He hides behind this deception, no doubt intimating that deception, no doubt intimating that this is the reason for his drinking, and then he diverts you from at-tacking him by making it necessary for you to persuade him that you love him. You needn't worry about convincing him of your leve. He is perfectly well assured that you love him. He is taking a cowardly ad-vantage of you in order to shield himself. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Vines Collapses as Americans Lose Cup Final to England

From Rabun Gap to Tybee Light, Georgians Are Rejoicing

Those Brooklyn Dodgers, now known as the Gowanus Goats, are skidding around in the second division of the National league.

And the laughter is a bit raucous in the old pine hills of last blanking they received was back in August, 1931. Georgia and along the coastal sections where the stills steam merrily and the fish leap joyously and the marsh hens swim.

Because the Dodgers, or the Gowanus Goats, once belonged to Georgia. That was when Wilbert Robinson was at the helm of the club. They never spent much money on the old gent's material. And he went along and made it the most popular ball club in the National league-the only rival the Yankees had in draw-

But the split in the Dodger family wouldn't do anything, except widen. The McKeever faction wanted to get rid of Wilbert Robinson and get a pennant winner instead of just a first division club that outdrew all the others.

And they finally did it. They hired Max Carey and they began to spend money like a drunken sailor-and got about the same results.

And right then and there the Georgia curse was put on the Dodgers. There is no telling how many magnums of Georgia corn have been drunk up in toasts-all to the confusion and Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief—they all rallied to the cause of Wilbert Robinson. The stillkeeper took a swig of his own stuff and wished the Robins all the luck in the world-just so it was bad.

The Georgia curse has done the work. Max Carey's path has been a rough one. His club has staggered around and gone nowhere except in reverse. Carey sold off Babe Herman, Dazzy Vance and other Brooklyn stars. It was his judgment and it proved to be no good at the gate or on the field.

The Gowanus Goats may finish up last and if they do the Georgia curse will have done it. Because the old Robins, with Wilbert Robinson on the field managing them, were a ball club to see.

Wilbert Robinson brought the Brooklyn owners from poverty to riches. And I never quite understood why some major league club didn't sign him on. He can still manage a ball club, even if he is getting along in years. So is Connie Mack and a lot of other people. John D. Rockefeller is 95 years old but no one tells him anything about the oil business.

But anyhow-for potency-take a look at the Georgia curse.

If someone will discover who put the curse on the Crackers back in 1926, and have it lifted, all will be well.

THEY CAN'T TAKE IT?

A young man who seems to have been devoting his mind to serious subjects, denounces baseball players in general as a lot of puny sissies instead of the manly athletes they are sup-

"I visited your ball park (not mine, pal) the other day," he writes, "and watched a ball game. I am one of those who has gone back to the farm, looked father in the face and asked where the harness is kept for one of the plow mules. Before that I rustled big boxes, barrels and other stuff in a shipping room of a big concern. That was when they were shipping stuff.

"I got to thinking at the ball game. It used to get pretty And we worked for eight Storeroom. day. And when one follows a plow he follows it for a longer

"The ball players seemed to suffer from the heat. I saw that a couple of them were being fanned by a towel held by a big fellow wearing a jacket.

"Now, the guys working in heavy work, such as shipping rooms or on labor in the sun, don't come into a dugout for ice water and a 10-minute rest every 10 minutes of a two-hour stretch. If they did, they'd have the can tied to them.

"So where do they get this stuff-talking about the heat and complaining about it and being fanned with towels and all that? Are they athletes, or does being in the sun for 10 minutes make the boys dizzy? I'm asking you?"

Well, pal, you'll have to ask them. It was the umpire, Bill Klem, I think, who said of baseball, "You can't beat them hours-three to five." And there is something in what you have to say. The old-timers in baseball, when squads were much smaller, didn't worry about the heat.

THE GIANTS AND THE YANKEES.

It is with some hesitation that I drag out the old and threadbare comparison of the bludgeon and the rapier. But if the Giants and the Yankees win pennants in their respective leagues, the comparison will be applicable.

Because the Yankees are essentially the team with the big stick. They have some good pitching, but they win ball games by hitting the baseball harder, farther and more often than the Bill Terry's outfit has the better pitching. That is, it is the better pitching in the National league. It remains to be seen if it is good enough to stop the Yankee bats. This is very, very doubtful. There are probably no pitchers in the world who can consistently stop Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, just to mention two of the bludgeon boys.

A pennant for Bill Terry would be glory enough without the series. He has done a very fine job of managing a ball club. John McGraw couldn't get it out of the second division. Terry made some trades which had the wise ones giggling. But they turned out to be smart deals.

The series with the Giants and Yankees as principals would be a great one. With the Yankees, of course, the favorites. The bludgeon is usually better than the

Firecrackers Beat

Following a week's road trip, on which they split evenly in a four-game series with Nashville, but dropped three out of four to Chattanooga, the Crackers come home to meet the league-leading Knoxville Smokies in a five-game series, opening with a single game tonight at Ponce de Leon at 8 o'clock. It is "ladies' night." There will be a double-header on Tuesday to make up for a rained-out game here June 10. Single games are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday with one of them likely to be played at night. You'll find the answer in "What Price Innocence," which is showing at the Rialto all of this week. The picture is based on a problem that has and always will confront parents. Should a child be told the facts of life? This picture refutes the old idea that they should not.

Jean Parker gives an excellent performance as the young unsophisticated girl, while Willard Mack, as the family physician and advisor, practically steals the show. Minna Gombell, as the self-centered, nagging mother, could not have been better The finale is one of the best bits

The finale is one of the best bits in the entire picture, showing the doctor who has sworn he will never deliver another life into this world is called on a maternity case and as he goes out the door speculates, "I hope it's a boy." There is a Laurel and Hardy comedy which will bring tears of laughter to your eyes, a technicolor musical revue and organlog and a news-reel to fill out a well-rounded bill for the week.

PROBLEMS IN GEORGIA'S WILD LIFE.

Before getting into the subject matter of today's item, I want to promise solemnly that unless you readers desire it, I shall have but little more to say about the necessity of research in certain phases of Georgia Natural History. However, it is a subject of serious consequence to me, and I want to unburden myself just this once.

This summer will see the publication of a book on the birds of the Atlanta area, with a bibliography of the references to Georgia birds in the literature of ornithology. This is the second volume of significance within two years dealing exclusively with a phase of Georgia wild-life. It is written by an Atlanta man who, should I call his name. would be known to almost every naturalist, professional or amateur, in Georgia, and it is the result of extensive observations made for the love of the subject, for his area whose habits are almost totally unknown. There are a dozen totally unknown. There are of other frogs in this area whose habits are almost totally unknown. There are other frogs in this area whose habits are almost totally unknown. WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

When Mary Sawyer, at 18, leaves her Millstream, Va., home to learn dress designing in Hollywood, she meets Freckle Bryan, a movie extra, and goes to five with her. Freckle takes her to a charity fair at the beautiful estate of Curt Little, millionaire movie producer, who recognizes her as the daughter of the man who stole his wife years before in Virginia. He determines to use Mary as the instrument of revenge and cultivates her friendship. The day after Mary meets Curt, who as 39 is prematurely gray but handsome, they are at the Chema Club when Tom Smith shows up at Freckle's apartment and announces he is Mary's fiance. Tom has made the trip from Virginia in an asthmatic car built from odd parts. When Mary returns at 3 o'clock in the morning, she upbraids him for following her. He leaves after a scene, saying Mary can reach him at the "Y." but writes her and she ask him to call that evening. Just before with him and saying he has a surplee in dearlives, Curt phones asking her to dine with him and saying he has a surplee in dearlives, Curt phones asking her to dine with him and saying he has a surplee in dearlives, Curt phones asking her to dine with him and saying he has a surplee in dearlier to send her, with her. Curt's surprised because of her size, but Madame purple and the surplise countrier, who delights her by engaging her as a model. Even Mary is surprised because of her size, but Madame suplains that several of Little's movie stars are petite and she needs a model like Mary to show them her gowns. What she does not tell Mary is that Curt Little is to pay her salary. Now GO ON WITH THE STORY.

courses. Every dress and hat and coat and pair of shoes she saw that she wanted. That was too much to throw away! Life was too short!

While Freckle talked herself out of being kind to Tommy he sank deeper and deeper into the slough of despond. When he looked up she was amazed to see how near tears he was.

"I guess there's not much use in my running around here tryin' to make up with Mary," he said so wistfully that Freckle was smitten again with conscience. "She has everything in the world she wants. She don't need me."

"I wouldn't exactly say that," Freckle cast about desperately for something to say. "I'm sure she'll always be glad to see her old friends—if they don't get all het up and start trying to boss her around."

Then he stopped the Cat-o-mobile and gazed sadly at the moon.

It made him think of his mother—the home at the turn in the road. And of Mary—somewhere—with Curt Little boy.

Suddenly Tommy dropped his yellow head into his arms and wept—the boy.

Tommy felt vastly relieved after his cry. Shamefacedly he lifted his wiped his eyes after the storm.

The cobwebs felt all washed out of his brain. For the first time in many days he felt he could think clearly. Women were lucky! They turned on something to say. Tommy looked up at the orange trees bathed in the California moonlight and saw that the world, after all, was not such a bad place. He was surprised to find that he could even think of Mary coherently.

Well, one thing was certain—he'd have to see Mary the next day and begin to get back into her good graces. Curt Little was trying to ruin her—of that all the reasoning in the world Tommy dropped his head sorrow-fully.

"I know—I spoiled everything the very first night by getting on my high horse. But, gosh—I couldn't help it!

She's human—and he's tryin' to turn her silly young head."

"That's a lot of wish-wash," Freckle snorted disdainfully. "Has it ever occurred to you the man might be in love with Mary?"

Tommy's eyes searched Freckle's rough. She silled with no common sense, he'd have no chance to get in his evangelistic campaign. Mary must be go about it a great deal more cleverly than he had been.

occurred to you the man might be in love with Mary?"

Tommy's eyes searched Freckle's a moment for a sign of mirth before he answered.

"Now you know he isn't in love with her! You're just being funny."

Freckle threw up her hands.

"Are you completely off your axis, Tommy Smith? Why shouldn't Curt Little fall in love with Mary? How old do you think he is—a hundred and fifty in the shade? Why, he's only 39."

Tommy's jaw dropped.

"Is—is that all he is?"

"Certainly."

Tomy getting hard-boiled with him. She was a good egg. A diamond in the rough. She didn't have Mary's bringing up or good breeding—but she was human and no doubt meant well. He guessed he had waxed a little clerical at times in his eagerness to make Mary see things as he saw them.

Tommy even slept well that night. He went out job-hunting the next morning with a great deal of pep, good resolutions oozing from every pore. It was the same miserable round he'd made every day—with no luck. By late afternoon he was dogitied and heartsick with discouragement.

Tommy's jaw dropped.

"Is—is that all he is?"

"Certainly."

"Oh." Tommy's bulk seemed to shrink in the big chair. Then desperately: "Well, he's much too old for Mary anyway."

"Sez you! Let's play hige-and-seek or ring-around-a-rosy or something. I'm getting sick of this business."

"Ill go." Tommy go up stiffly, very much offended. "I'm sorry I've bored you."

"I don't mean to be inhospitable, Tommy," she sighed regretfully. "but you are so pig-headed about all this. Why don't you look on the bright side of life once in a while? Mary isn't a lost soul."

Tommy whirled at the door to confront Freckle:

"You—you don't think I think Mary would do anything—anything—unladylike!"

Treckle burst into an uncontrollable fit of laughter. Tommy gazed at her a moment in hurt amazement. Then banging the door he ran down at the stairs.

These Hollywood women! They just naturally don't have any souls. Laughing at anything so sacred as a man who believed in standing up for a woman's honor. Tommy had an aching longing to be back home down south—where a man could call a woman a lady without being made fun of.

He drove madly—block after block—until he found himself in a parklike stretch of trees and flowers, which seemed like the country.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, July 23.—(P)—The bond market made a valiant effort to resist the adverse influence of slumping stocks during the past week but was finally forced to join the gloomy hegira.

Although junior securities began their decline on Wednesday, bonds displayed resistance by moving up about two-tenths of a point on the average to another peak for the past

Dr. Bowen, in addition to serving as professor, was also vice president of Gammon and for four years he was president of this theological seminary. Historetos of young men have come under his direct tutelage and are reflecting the example of his life set before them and translating his unusual philosophy of life into their daily contacts, whether as ministers or lay leaders in the church life of the community where they live.

Dr. Bowen was a graduate of Boston University and had given 40 years of service to his church, his race, his country and his God. Perhaps his largest contribution to social progress and educational advancement was given in public speaking. In the days of his prime he had few equals and no superiors. His oratorical ability and his engaging personality on the platform won for him a reputation as a public speaker that few men have enjoyed. He was sought after by men of all race elements far and near. Much of his time was taken up in his attempt to respond to the many demands made upon him to do the thing he not only could do extraordinarily well, but the thing he loved to do perhaps better than anything else,

Both of these men were nationally known and recognized as having special gifts in their respective fields of endeavor through which they made an enduring contribution to the educational uplift, social advancement, spiritual well-being and interracial understanding. Both of them lived to see their children grown and in good positions as result of the splendid educational equipment and extraordi-
